STRASBURGH, March 24.

We have this day received some details of the battle which was fought on the 21st and 22nd of this month, between the army of the Danube & that of prince Charles. The contest was maintained with great perseverance on both sides, and the loss is very great. Our army, which was much inferior to that of the Austrians, has lost some ground. It retreated from Sulzau and Aulendorf, to Fullendorf and Mefkiruh; and on the 22d the headquarters were transferred to Stockach, and afterwards to Engen. The centre of the army took a new position between that town and Stockach, and encamped in the environs of Aach. The left wing which has equally lost ground, was posted between Sigmaringen and Tutlingen. The body commanded by Gen. Vandame, which was to advance to the left bank of the Danube, drew near to that river on the 22d, and effected a junction with the division of Gen. St. Cyr.

Prince Charles advanced as far as Hohenhengen, but he was attacked on the 23d by troops under commanded by Gen. St. Cyr. The cavalry commanded by Gen. Hauptpault, distinguished itself in a very brilliant manner in this engagement, and succeeded after a very sharp action, in repulsing the Austrians, and enabling the army again to march forward. It is even added, that the head-quarters were on the 24th, to be again transferred to Stockach, and that the military administrations established at Fribourg in Brigau, received orders to follow the army.

General Ferino, on his part, engaged the left wing of the Austrians on the 21st and 22d, on the Lake of Constance, between Ueberlingen and Moersburg, and completely routed it. He advanced with his division, and that of Gen. Souham, which form the right wing of the army of the Danube, as far as Bregenz. The communication between Jourdan and Massena has not been intercepted.

STUTTGARD, March 15.

Accounts have been brought here by strangers, who arrived from the neighbourhood of Memmingen, that General Hotze, after having received a reinforcement of 10,000 men, repulsed the French, in his turn, on the 8th and 9th and that he had already advanced as far as Vaduz. We are assured that the action of the 10th was decisive.

Helvetic Republic.

LUCERNE, March 13.

We have received the following details respecting the expedition of general Lacourbe. On the 5th that general, at the head of 12,000 men, began his march from Bellinzona, and entered the valley of Milfon. After a slight contest, he repulsed the enemy's advanced posts. On the 6th and 7th, the French continued to advance and after two very brisk engagements, they penetrated by St. Bernard into Rheinwald.

The attacks on the side of Porchiava, Bergwell, and Splignerburg, were nothing but feints. All the French troops, to the number of 16,000 put themselves motion on the 6th.—Their plan seems to be, to penetrate by the mountains into the Tyrol. The French have gained new advantages in the country of the Grisons on the frontiers of the Tyrol.

England.

LONDON, April 5.

The Reis Effendi is stated to have notified to the Foreign Ministers at Constantinople that the English fleet which blockades Alexandria, has captured two French ships of the line, three frigates and four smaller vessels of war. This is probably the French squadron lately fitted out at Ancona, and said to be destined for the relief of Corfu, but which was conjectured to be for Egypt.

April 8.

Ghezzer, the Pacha of Syria, has according to letters from Constantinople, commenced march for Egypt; his army consisted of three columns; one directed against Cairo, the other against Damietta, and the third to join Murad Bey who maintained his ground against the French.

April 9.

FRENCH SUCCESSES.

The Paris Gazettes of the 3d and 4th, confirm the accounts bro't by former advices of the success of the French in Italy, where the presence of the Russians is highly necessary to stop the career of the enemy.—General Sherer gave the following account of the victory he has gained on the Adige:

EXECUTIVE DIRECTORY.

Massena commander in chief of the French army in Helvetia, to the Executive Directory.

"Head-Quarters at Rheinek,

March 28.

"Citizens Directors,

"I had ordered gen. Lacourbe to attack Finsterminter; and also the division of the army of Italy, in the Valteline, under my command, to attack Glureutz. That gen. performed his operations in his usual manner, and his dispositions were made with so much judgment, that the enemy were completely defeated. The result of the victory is seven thousand prisoners and twenty-five pieces of cannon. The troops which compose the two divisions, and the gallant generals at their head, are entitled to the highest praise. Gen. Lacourbe mentions the conduct of the conscription soldiers in terms of the warmest panegyric. According to his information, Finsterminter, Nanders, and Glureutz, are in the possession of our troops. I shall have the honor citizens directors, to lay before you more in detail the circumstances of this brilliant success which happened on the 26th of March.

"Health and respect,

(Signed)

"MASSENA."

EXECUTIVE DIRECTORY.

The general in chief of the armies of Italy and Naples, to the Executive Directory.

"Head Quarters at Casle Nuovo, 26th March, 7th year—at night. "At break of day I attacked the enemy in his position between the lake of Garda and the Adige, with three divisions. Two other divisions proceeded to attack Verona while the sixth covered Legnano. "The three divisions on the left carried, sword in hand twenty-two redoubts or small forts which the enemy had planned round their position. The slaughter was dreadful. After a most sanguinary combat of four hours, gen. Delmas and Grenier drove the enemy from all his positions, pursued him without intermission and got possession of two bridges on the Adige.

"The division of Serrurier, on its part seconded by our flotilla, carried all before it along the lake of Garda.

"The two divisions which proceeded against Verona have powerfully contributed to the success of the main attack. They fought with the greatest bravery from day break until dark against a very numerous body of the enemy.

"Our recruits or the conscription rivalled the courage of our most veteran grenadiers. Poles Helveticans, Piedmontese, Cisalpins—all have done their duty, and proved themselves worthy of fighting by the side of Frenchmen.

"The result of this battle which does honor to the army of Italy, even compared with its former victories, has put in our possession two bridges on the Adige, twelve pieces of canon, two pair of colours, and about 4000 prisoners, among whom are a number of officers. The enemy has, besides, left on the field above 3000 killed, and a great number wounded.

"General Delmas has received a ball in his leg, but he still continues to fight, notwithstanding his wound. Gen. Delafeme received a wound in his thigh, which obliged him to retire from the field.

Letter from citizen Laudier, adjutant of general Massena.

Head-Quarters, at Coire,

24 Ventose, March 14.

Dear Sir,

You have, no doubt, received the letter which I wrote to you some days ago, in which I gave you an account of our first successes in the Grison country. Our victory is now complete. The whole country is ours. Very few of all the Austrians who were there have escaped. We have taken from 11 to 12,000 prisoners, 10 standards of the Grison militia, and a number of Austrian ensigns.—Many more would have been taken had they not been thrown down the precipices. There are no longer any Austrians in the Grison country, except those who have saved themselves in the mountains, where they will soon be obliged to surrender.

It was gen. Calabianca who advanced from the Valteline, made himself master of the valley of Engadin, and took possession of the height, which separate the Grisons from the Tyrol.

By the taking of the Grison country by the French, the theatre of war, is removed to a greater distance from Switzerland.

A Provisional Municipality was appointed at Coire, and a tree of liberty planted on the 12th. Preparations are making to hold the Primary and electoral assemblies through the whole of the Grisons, to choose deputies for the Helvetic legislative body at Lucerne.

Citizen Massena, gen. of division commander of the army of Helvetia, to the executive Directory.

Coire, 27 Ventose, (March 17.)

Citizens Directors,

General Lecourbe who was to protect against Finsterminter, and who I informed you in my last dispatch was at Sylva Plena, in following his route fell in with the Austrians in force, completely beat them, took two pieces of cannon and made 2000 prisoners. He pursued them, and I can almost assure you, from the dispositions which have been made, that an equal number of prisoners will still fall into our hands, which will make the loss of the enemy from ten to eleven thousand men.

In the present situation of affairs I thought the importance of this success so great as to merit being communicated to you by an extraordinary courier.

Health and respect.

(Signed)

MASSENA.

P. S. Citizens directors, I open my letter to inform you of the real loss of the enemy, transmitted to me by gen. Lacourbe in a second dispatch received this moment by his aid de camp.

The number of prisoners at the period.

when he sent off his dispatches, amounted to 3600 Austrians, among which are a lieutenant colonel, two majors and fifty officers. The enemy likewise lost a great number in killed and wounded. We have taken from them a great quantity of military stores—there are about thirty cases of cartridges—There were the more acceptable, as our troops might have been in want of them.

Gen. Lecourbe is in pursuit of the enemy—by this time he will have taken position at Faidhermiller.

I cannot sufficiently praise the conduct of Gen. Lecourbe and the troops under his command, who have never been disconcerted, either by the difficulty of the roads the excessive severity of the cold nor the enormous quantity of snow; and who have derived new strength from the very obstacles they had to surmount.

The new conscript levies, the first time they were in action, on every occasion displayed a courage which was admired by the oldest soldiers in the army.

(Signed) MASSENA.

ARMY OF ITALY.

Extract of a letter from the gen. of division Rubens, to the commander in chief of the army of Italy, dated head-quarters at Foggia, March 19, General.

The collected army of La Pouille and the Abruzzese was by no means of an ephemeral duration. A number of galley flaves, and the feathered remainder of corps, which were before me in the Abruzzese strengthened by all the populace of San Severo and its environs, formed together an assemblage of 10,000 men, who had occupied a strong military position. They had occupied a height covered with Olives, which commanded an extensive plain, which was cleared by their Cavalry, whilst their cannon was so placed as to command the principal opening.

After having made my dispositions, the signal was given, and the attack was made with the quickness of lightning.—The manoeuvres were bravely executed by our troops, the retreat of the rebels was completely cut off, and the remainder of the day was nothing more than an absolute massacre. It was terminated only by the men mixing themselves with the women and children, who had fled on the preceding day, and who were put forward to meet the fury of our soldiers. These objects always respected in the eyes of Frenchmen, obtained for the rebels a degree of commiseration which they did not themselves deserve. Our soldiers, so terrible but one hour before, mildly reconducted these groups of women and children to their forsaken habitations.

I had sworn to burn San Severo, as the focus of this general revolt. The inhabitants had put to death all those who talked of a surrender, and who in their fury had imprisoned their bishop for having in the name of the gospel, preached peace and submission.—But I was touched by the miserable fate of a population of 20,000 souls; I ordered the plunder to cease, and pardoned them. More than 3000 rebels have perished amongst whom were discovered several Neapolitan officers.—Their cannon fell into our hands. I send you only their cavalry standards, those of the infantry were only church table-cloths.

Mons. Predamio, Jan Marco, Torre Maggiore, and all the people of the surrounding districts, came in the night to ask for pardon, inasmuch, that all La Pouille, which some days before with the exception of Foggia, was in a state of insurrection, is now absolutely pacified.

(Signed) LEOPOLD BERTHIER.

On the 26th ult. gen. Jourdan wrote from his head-quarters at Dutlingen as follows:

Jourdan, general in chief to Chateaufort Kandon, gen. of division.

Head-Quarters at Weiler, near Dutlingen, 26th March, 7th year.

"Since the 19th I have had several sharp actions with prince Charles. In the last of them which took place on the 25th, and continued for 13 hours, I remained master of the field of battle, and made 4000 prisoners. But the enemy's army amounting to 60,000 men, and receiving daily reinforcements, I found myself under the necessity though victorious, of falling back. I shall cover the defiles of the Black Mountains, so that the department of the Lower Rhine shall have nothing to fear, and I shall proceed forward as soon as I have received the reinforcements which are promised me.

(Signed)

The Paris papers of the 24th of March state, that a Ragusan vessel from Alexandria, arrived at Ragusa on the 6th of March with the following accounts from Egypt:

Alexandria had a garrison of 2000 French troops, and there were 22,000 men posted along the coast as far as Roletta. The English attempted to bombard Alexandria, but without success. They had landed a considerable body of Russians and Turks who were defeated. A body, consisting of 10,000 French and 10,000 Greeks advanced into Syria, and after defeating the Mamelukes made themselves masters of Gaza, on the Frontiers of Syria. The army of Murad Bey is entirely destroyed, and he is stated to have been either taken or killed. Buonaparte was at Cairo, and the French have a great number of adherents, consisting of Greeks, Armenians, Jews and even Europeans.

By a letter received in this town last week, from a gentleman at Natchez, dated 4th May, we are informed, that the Indians had, a few days prior to the above date, flayed a white man in the bowels of that town. No mention is made in the letter, what induced the Indian to commit this act.—It mentions that the people in that quarter seem very apprehensive of danger from the Indians—and they by no means think it safe to travel, at present, through the wilderness.

VIENNA, March 27.

(FROM THE COURT GAZETTE.)

The following is the account received from his royal highness the Archduke Charles, of the actions of the 20th and 21st, near Olitrah, in the vicinity of Pfundersdorf:

"Head-Quarters, Pfundersdorf, March 21.

"The French army under the command of gen. Jourdan, continuing to advance, drove in our weak posts on all sides.—The French commanders alleging that this was not to be considered as hostilities, but that they were obliged to take possession of certain posts, according to the orders which they had received. In this manner Jourdan marched with his army to before Olitrah, which on the other side gen. Ferino, who had been detached with his division to the lake of Constance, drove back the posts of major, gen. Freyherr, and Ravensburg.

"In proportion as the enemy advanced, I made some hasty marches, and on the 20th reached the heights near Saulgan and Althausen.

"I caused the army to encamp close to the principal posts of my advanced guard, so that the main body was only one day's march distant from the French.

"On the same day that I had taken this position the enemy attacked my advanced guard, overpowered some of my foremost detachments, and advanced even to Holtzenkirchen and Klotterfussen. The detachments which had been driven back, however, no sooner received reinforcements, than they drove the enemy back to some distance in their turn.

"As I had now advanced by forced marches so near to the enemy, I resolved yesterday immediately to make the attack.—The enemy took his position near Olitrah. He concentrated his main force on the advantageous heights of Olitrah as also those of Mengen.—The valley of Olitrah is marshy, and to force that it has only four principal passages. The position of the enemy therefore gave him many local advantages, and a great superiority.

"In this situation I thought it most advisable to attack the enemy's centre with united forces: with this view placed behind the advanced guard under field marshal lieutenant Nanendorf, a column on the right, under the command of field marshal lieutenant the prince of Furberburg, along the Danube towards Mengen; another on the left, under the command of gen. count Willis, to march on the Chaussee of Althausen, towards Olitrah, towards which latter place, likewise I myself led the middle column, along the Chaussee of Saulgan. I succeeded in driving the enemy after an obstinate resistance, from his position, and pursued to the heights of Pfundersdorf.

"In this advantageous position the enemy again made a stand. His whole front being in this position completely covered by a marshy valley, I drew the greater part of my army towards his right flank, in order to attack him on that side, and in the rear; but this attack could not be made yesterday, on account of the night coming on. The enemy, however, did not choose to wait for it, but retreated in the night to Stockach, whither he was pursued by my advanced guard.

"Our loss in killed and wounded is not small, as the attack of the strong position of Olitrah was extremely difficult; the loss of the enemy, however, is infinitely more considerable. We took a number of prisoners, and three pieces of cannon."

ULM, March 27.

According to accounts from the head quarters of the Archduke, dated Stockach, 26th instant, the French had, the day before, attacked the Austrian army at several points with great violence.—They were obliged, however, to retire with considerable loss. The action cost the Austrians many brave soldiers. The Prince of Furberburg, the Prince of Anhalt Bernberg, and many staff officers are among the slain.
